Dear Mr GLASGOW

Section 7, Data Protection Act, 1998 - Subject Access

In reply to your request for information that may be held about you on the Police National Computer.

The Data Protection Act places an obligation on the Police when holding personal information on computer to provide a copy of that information (unless an exemption applies) to the individual concerned on request.

From the personal details supplied in your request the information, which the Chief Officer is required to supply under the provisions of the Act is enclosed.

Information held, if any, which can identify another person may have been deleted. Where deletions have been made for this reason the places where they occur are identified by a series of dots.

If you think that the information is incorrect please write to the above address quoting the reference number.

If you requested any information in addition to what is held on the Police National Computer, the Originating Police Force as above will send you a separate reply.

Yours faithfully,

For the Criminal Records Manager
ACPO Criminal Records Office (ACRO)

[NB: The exemptions in relation to disclosure of information held on Police computers are limited to where data are held for:- (a) the prevention or detection of crime, (b) the apprehension or prosecution of offenders, and disclosing such data would be likely to prejudice those purposes.]

This document does not constitute a Certificate of Good Character
